PRIMARY PREVENTION OF ALCOHOL USE IN A GLOBAL APPROACH

Summary

The paper that was presented at the Polish-Belgic Symposium held in Warsaw, November/December 1988, discusses 10-year experiences related to alcohol prevention program conducted among juvenile population of the German-speaking part of Belgium.

According to the research findings prevention should be started early (among 11-12 year olds) and then continued during the whole socialization period of young people. Its effectiveness is granted by a complex approach adopted by working teams.

The working teams were to stimulate local political, religious and other institutions, that include family, various schools, leisure institutions, companies and municipalities in St. Vith and Eupen. Preventive activities were structured and coordinated, arising in communities a sense of responsibility for health problems and situation of young generations.
